

From Plans to Outcomes: Delivering Resilient Cities

Delivering Resilience: Insights from Practice

Preparation and planning is essential

KEY INSIGHT

While disasters are uncertain, our greatest certainty (and strength) is planning and preparing together

Aftermath of Hurricane Sandy

Aftermath of Hurricane Sandy

Meeting with President Obama

Preparation and planning is essential

KEY INSIGHT

It's about building the capacity to keep life going when everything else stops

Case Study : State level coordination through watershed-based governance

Preparation and planning is essential

KEY INSIGHT

True recovery is achieved when plans deliver lasting results

Partnering for outcomes

KEY INSIGHT

Driving real outcomes means partnering across sectors to do what no one can do alone

Aftermath of Hurricane Melissa – Jamaica

Aftermath of Hurricane Irma and Maria – Puerto Rico

Global Mayors Challenge – AgriBOOST, Butuan

Partnering for outcomes

KEY INSIGHT

True resilience depends on long-term leadership, building systems and plans that last beyond any one leader, administration, or crisis

PlaNYC – Mayor Michael R. Bloomberg

Questions and Reflections

Delivery Associates

Thank you for your time and engagement

We welcome any further discussion or collaboration

laurel.blatchford@deliveryassociates.com